STEPPING INTO BEITOU'S STORY

Beitou felt like a living history book, with our passionate guide weaving past and present together. From the Beitou Hot Spring Museum to the Thermal Valley, every stop was packed with fascinating stories and fun facts. Her love for her hometown made history come alive in the best way possible.

Did you know?

- Hokutolite is a rare, mildly radioactive mineral found in Beitou's hot springs and Japan's Tamagawa Hot Springs, named after Beitou's Japanese name, "Hokuto."
- Beitou earned the title "the Hollywood of Taiwan" due to its picturesque scenery and unique atmosphere, with over 100 films shot there, making it a natural film studio.

CHI PO-LIN MUSEUM

In the afternoon, we visited the Chi Po-lin Museum, dedicated to the late director renowned for his aerial photography of Taiwan. The exhibition, "Resilient Island" explores Taiwan's environmental resilience and our intertwined relationship with the land. Our passionate guides provided deep insights into Taiwan's landscapes and the importance of environmental sustainability. Their enthusiasm made the experience both informative and inspiring.

Director Chi Po-lin's profound love for Taiwan was truly admirable.

ACTS OF CHANGE

Afternoon

Next, we visited Tzu Chi, an international Buddhist humanitarian organization known for its disaster relief, medical care, and educational initiatives. Tzu Chi's efforts extend far beyond Taiwan, with volunteers working globally to help communities affected by natural disasters.

Morning

Day 2 took us to Step30, where we had the privilege of meeting the co-founder. She shared how the organization began and their impactful work, such as collecting and donating shoes to those in need.

We even got hands-on by sorting the shoes donated to Step30, which was an eye-opening experience about the power of community support.

BRIDGING GLOBAL VOICES

Day 3 began with an inspiring opening ceremony and keynote speeches, highlighting the importance of global partnerships for empowering youth. The “Global Partnership for Youths” session emphasized how collaboration can create opportunities for young people worldwide.

In the afternoon, we participated in the World Café, where we delved into thought-provoking discussions about gap years, international organizations, and overseas volunteering. It was fascinating to hear perspectives from people with different backgrounds, and the conversations sparked new ideas about how youth can make a tangible impact on global challenges.

To top it all off, we ended the day by hitting up Ximending for some food and laughs with our ambassadors. They were a total ray of sunshine, making the night unforgettable!

PATHS TO IMPACT

Day 4 was all about diving deeper into real-world impact. We listened to industry representatives share their expertise on volunteering and the challenges that come with it. Their insights gave us a clearer picture of how we can contribute meaningfully to global causes.

In the afternoon, things got even more exciting. The workshop was the perfect blend of fun, knowledge, and seriousness. Our amazing moderator kept things lively, and the people at my table were just as fantastic. We dove into an interactive workshop where we role-played real-life volunteering situations. It was an engaging experience, full of problem-solving, learning, and plenty of laughs, making it a day to remember

A FAREWELL TO REMEMBER :)

The farewell party was the perfect way to close out an incredible experience. We shared laughter, music, and moments that turned into memories. The pictures we took are a reminder of the connections and friendships made. It's a little sad that it all ended so quickly, but I'm grateful for every moment. I'm so glad to have met all of you and thank you for making these short 5 days truly memorable.
